In response to the antisemitic attack in Monsey, New York:

Holocaust Museum Houston is deeply saddened and outraged by the horrific antisemitic attack in Monsey, New York. We stand in solidarity with the entire Jewish community and all people who commit to fighting the evil of antisemitism. Holocaust education is vital to the mission of eradicating hatred and bigotry in order to create a more respectful world.

Each of us has an individual responsibility for the collective actions of society and we must stand up and do the right thing. When confronted with hatred and prejudice, we must remember: What you say matters. What you do matters. And in the words of Elie Wiesel, "One person of integrity can make a difference." Together, let's commit to always be that person.

Sincerely,
